COME TO BULLOCH COUNTY, THE HEART OF GEORGIA, "WHERE NATURE SMILES"

GEORGIA TOBACCO CROP IS IMMENSE

SALES FOR LAST WEEK BRING TOTALS WELL AHEAD OF LAST SEASON.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 15.—South Georgia tobacco culturists this season have reaped the richest harvest in the history of the industry, setting two new records for production and money returns.

With the close of the fourth week's sales returns for the 1929 crop had reached a total of $16,271,101.19, an average of $18.76 per hundred pounds for the 86,940,003 pounds sold thus far. These figures were announced by the State Department of Agriculture.

The past week with sales of 16,117,349 pounds, or $245,464.72, an average of $13.31 per hundred, saw twenty of the fifty-four warehouses in the state suspended operations for the year, and the others have fixed closing dates. Within the next ten days the others will have closed, leaving an opportunity for the total yield and money return to reach new heights.

Two of the markets closing failed to make reports.

The total sold compares with the season of 1928 when the Georgia crop set a new record with 85,727,172 pounds and the total money return exceeded by $5,000,000.00 the high mark established in 1928.

Douglas, with total sales of 2,326,584 pounds at an average of $13.29, held its place of leadership last week and bids fair to top the list for the season when the final recapitulation is made. Vidalia, with 2,233,450 pounds at an average of $12.52, was in second place, and Tifton, where season sales have crossed the 10,000,000-pound mark and returns more than $2,000,000, was third with 1,819,424 pounds at $14.89 per hundred pounds.

Warehouse in these three markets will continue sales through a part of this week.

Markets that closed during the past week were: Adel, Bainbridge, Camilla, Fitzgerald, Hahira, Hazlehurst, Nashville, Pelham, Quitman, Thomasville and Waycross.

NEVER DREAMED THERE WAS SUCH A MEDICINE

"It's hard to believe that just four weeks' treatment with Sargol and Sargol Soft Mass Pills has made me so well and strong again."

"I had such a hard time of it. I couldn't even lie down at times, much less sleep. You will never know how thankful I am for Sargol. It has driven every ache and pain from my body and restored me to splendid health. I've gained nine pounds and my whole system is in better shape, especially since the pills regulated me so perfectly."

New French Styles

In Men's Toggery

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 19.—Men will be boys for sure before the summer is over if the French tailors have their way and succeed in putting their clients into little silk shirts and pyjama-like shirts for office wear, fashionable haberdashers in Atlanta's civic center in the Peachtree Arcade were informed today by returning stylists from eastern markets.

The pyjama-like shirts are said to come in black and all the bright colors, sometimes bound around the edges in silk braid. There are said to be short striped pants just like the gentlemen wear in their younger days and the woolen stockings on them. It is claimed the outfit is cooler, if anything, than the pajama suits which American manufacturers are planning, following the street parade of W. C. Saunders, North Carolina editor, in his fawn-colored pajamas recently. They are certainly practical as well as a bit audacious, Atlanta dealers say.

Brighter clothes for men are coming out in the form of light and gay vests to be seen with dark striped suits, it was stated here. Cream color, gray, beige and even soft blue shades will be featured by tailors in their movement toward a brighter future for men. For the most part, these vests are said to be double-breasted six-button variety, with turn-over collars.

As for neckties, however, no new and startling effects have been introduced, the local stylists said. The same speckled designs which were in vogue all winter are being shown for the well-dressed man for the late summer. They come in all colors to match the suit.

SPELLS OF BACKACHE

"I HAVE used Cardui at intervals for sixteen years, when I suffered from weakness, and it always helped me," says Mrs. J. W. Jirigot, R. F. D. 2, Troy, Ala.

"Mostly I was afflicted with bad spells of backache. At times I felt as if my back would break. I would drag one foot after the other, in a helpless sort of a way, and once I got down in bed. My husband urged me to take Cardui, and I soon found what a fine medicine it really was."

"When my second child was little, I was in very bad health. I did not pick up as I should have. I was weak and sickly. I do not believe that I would have come through, but for Cardui."

GOOD MECHANICS NOW SPECIALISTS

A striking analogy between the procedure followed at the modern automobile service station and the methods in vogue at the present day medical clinic is drawn by R. A. Armstrong, service manager for the Oakland Motor Car Company.

"In recent years the way and means of maintaining both the human body and the automobile at the highest peak of efficiency have progressed along strikingly similar lines," declared Mr. Armstrong.

"Not so long ago, a large majority of the medical profession was composed of general practitioners—physicians who attempted to treat all the ills to which human flesh is heir. And identically the same condition obtained in the field of automobile service. The mechanics in the service stations of that day tried their hands at maintaining all of the variously designed cars of different makes. Each man possessed a smattering of general service knowledge about different cars and each was assigned in rotation to whatever maintenance job was next to be done."

But the medical profession today has largely split into specialized branches of practice. We have the eye specialist, the specialist who treats only stomach diseases, the expert on spinal troubles, the pediatric and many others whose professional activities are equally concentrated. In a modern clinic is found a diagnostician who merely locates the patient's difficulty and then assigns him to a man specializing in that particular ailment. Apparently the medical profession realized that no one can possibly excel in the treatment of every disease. Specialization was the natural result.

"And the same evolution is taking place in the profession of automobile servicing. Like the human body, the automobile is a mechanism so intricate and so finely built that no individual can achieve maximum skill in servicing the entire field of automobiles. This is true because of wide variance of design among different types of cars which require special servicing knowledge. Thus we have seen the gradual development of automobile service specialists—men who devote their entire time to the maintenance of one type of automobile. Of course, like the average medical specialist, these service specialists possess a comprehensive background of general servicing knowledge. Just as the medical specialist knows the entire human body, so they possess general knowledge about all makes of cars. But they know more about their own than any general mechanic can know."

"The Oakland Motor Car Company provides special factory training for the mechanics who comprise its army of service specialists in Oakland-Pontiac garages throughout the country. The company maintains a 'medical college' or laboratory where classes of mechanics are brought in from the field each week for factory instruction. In addition to this instruction to men already employed in Oakland-Pontiac garages, the factory conducts one-year courses of intensive instruction for large classes of student mechanics. After graduation they return to their home towns as service managers or special service mechanics."

"Of late years, individuals who value health as their greatest asset have adopted the custom of subjecting themselves every year or every few months to a complete physical inspection. They undergo tests to determine the condition of their teeth, blood, heart, lungs and in fact every portion of the body. Thus minor or incipient ills may be discovered in time to be easily remedied. Naturally this regular inspection by experts results in better health and higher physical efficiency."

"Now the same custom is spreading among thinking motorists. Cars are brought in for periodic inspection. Although the automobiles may be performing most excellently the trained eye or ear of the service specialist may detect and remedy some minor difficulty that later might have proved serious. Just as the individual assures himself of continued health and long life by regular medical inspection, so does the intelligent motorist assure his car of high efficiency and long trouble-free operation by regularly subjecting his machine to the inspection of our Oakland-Pontiac service specialists."

"I would like to reach every Oakland or Pontiac owner with this message. Don't wait until YOU believe your car requires adjustment or service. Permit EXPERTS to decide. You will be surprised at the time and money you will save and you will be gratified by long years of maximum performance."

HISTORY OF ROUTE 80 PREPARED BY U. S.

through Savannah, an important and prosperous port and tourist city, whose landlocked harbor is 18 miles from the sea on the Savannah river. In 1733 the Colony of Georgia was founded in Savannah by Gen. James Oglethorpe, and the city was retained and extended its magnificent system of streets, parks and squares originally designed by its founder.

On the western wall of the Customs House is a tablet commemorating the spot where the first public building in Georgia was erected and where Rev. John Wesley preached his first sermon in America, in 1736. Wesley came to this country as a clergyman of the Church of England and later established Methodist in America. Near Wright Square is the Tom-Chi-Chi boulder erected in memory of the Indian chief who was a companion of General Oglethorpe and the friend and ally of the Colony of Georgia.

Other well known and historical sites in the city are the Savannah Theatre, erected in 1818, and said to be the oldest theater in active use in the country; the famous Washington guns in front of Chatham Artillery; the British evacuated Savannah; Fort Wayne, named for General Anthony Wayne in 1782 and now the Savannah Gas Co. headquarters. Owen House, built in 1815, in which General Lafayette was entertained; a granite site which marks the spot where General Oglethorpe pitched his tent; the site of his first night on Georgia soil; Spring Hill tablet, opposite Central of Georgia Railway depot, which marks the spot of a bloody battle in 1779, in which Pulaski was killed, and also Sergeant Jasper and Oglethorpe monument in center of Chippewa Square.

The Cannon Monuments mark the beginning of the first two highways in Georgia. The one on the east side of the monument marks the beginning of the road to Darien in 1735 which is probably the first road laid out in Georgia with the assistance of Tom-Chi-Chi. Green monument commemorates the memory and services of General Nathaniel Greene during the Revolutionary War. Mulberry grove, a plantation just west of Savannah, was confiscated from John Graham, declared guilty of treason, and presented to General Greene. Here Kil Whitney, a tutor to the Greene children, invented the cotton gin.

The bankers of the Savannah golf course are the breasted soldiers at the approach of Sherman. Nearby is "The Hermitage" on a bluff of the Savannah, a well-preserved old plantation, an a relic of ante-bellum days. Also nearby is the experimental bamboo grove maintained by the United States department of agriculture. The route continues through orchards of peach and pecan trees and rich farming land to Macon, in the heart of the Georgia peach belt. The first date in Macon's history is 1540 when De Soto crossed the Ocmulgee where the city now stands. Shortly after 1800 the government established Fort Benjamin Hawkins and Macon became an important point on the stage-coach line from New York to New Orleans. Wesleyan, the first chartered women's college in the world, was opened here in 1836.

Leaving Macon the highway crosses rich bottomland to Columbus, on the Chattahoochee river, an industrial city with some of the largest cotton mills in the South. It was founded 180 years ago as an Indian trading post. The Fourteenth street bridge marks the spot where one of the last battles of the War Between the States was fought. Nearby is Fort Benning, the United States Army Infantry school.

From Columbus, Route 80 begins its stretch of 227 miles across Alabama, through Tuskegee, the home of the Normal and Industrial Institute founded and conducted by negroes, of which Booker T. Washington was principal, to Montgomery, the capital, a commercial city and lumber center. In the capital was held the secession convention and on the porch, at a spot marked with a brass tablet, Jefferson Davis was inaugurated President of the Confederate States. In the Winter Building, the order was given to fire on Fort Sumter.

Leaving Montgomery, the highway crosses the black-soil belt, a gently rolling prairie in West-Central Alabama, passing through Selma, a mercantile center in the heart of a rich agricultural section and also noted for its textile plants; through Marion Junction, a large hay shipping point; through Uniontown, Demopolis and Livingston to the Mississippi state line, where it begins its march of 166 miles across that state, passing through productive plantations devoted largely to cotton and tobacco raising to Meridian, picturesque situated in a valley surrounded by beautiful wooded hills with streams and small lakes in abundance. This city is a wholesale and manufacturing center, the site of the annual Mississippi-Alabama fair, and is noted for its hyacinths, hydrangeas and beautiful crape myrtle. During the War Between the States it was an important railway center and was seized by the Union forces in 1864.

Arrows From a Quiver

(By J. Marvin Nichols, Dallas, Texas)

Normally, the simple life is the strong life.

No one is great until he feels the pang of a crucifixion.

No one envies the pioneer until he begins to gather in his riches.

Nothing is permanent but change.

No heart is quite large enough to give room to hate.

Nothing but man can smile—smile, then.

Many times it is hard to tell a love match from a first class bluff.

Live your love and it will need no interpreter.

No woman reaches a higher point than to be wise and womanly at one and the same time.

Necessity is the mother of two extremes wherein we are tried. No man knows his powers until he stands at this point.

No man is at his best when he has lost control of himself. The time of all times when a man needs to be at his best is when he is attacked.

The highest thing a man can face is sure and certain destiny—extinction. Do you understand?

Men who make money by working mere children are making too much money.

Many of us forestall our vision of the higher things by an abnormal self-appreciation.

Marriage is a monarchical form of government with a queen on the throne.

Merit is not all of it. Appearance count for much when a man is on the block.

No play is well staged unless it ends beautifully. When the curtain falls the last act in life's drama ought to linger with the world like the after-glow of a sun long since gone down.

Most of the people in this big old world are in a rut. One is born, lives and dies, and the world rocks on as though one more or one less had never been.

Let your friends be numberless. But that inner circle—be wary of its growth. The day that Napoleon reduced it to three persons he paved his way to the crown.

Like the pup chasing the flying express, some folks are pursuing ideals, while others are wondering what they would do with them if they were overtaken.

Lots of self-branded saints are waiting for Gabriel to blow his horn when they might do a little business for the good of the race if they would only toot their own for a while.

No person can really live whose life is cold and shivered. Love and life are one and the same. Life grows rich and precious as love deepens and broadens. The empty life is always self-centered. To save yourself, be spent for others. Selfishness is a high form of suicide.

In this remarkable age of heart exposure, when all is being brought under a light surcharge with radiance, may we not ask: "After all, is not everybody about as bad as anybody?"

But we must try to keep from the repinings of the mere pessimist and the employment of the detestable character-assassin.

There is nothing sadder than the unwelcome child in the home. If you will stand inside the circle of these modern times there are many things which remove us by ages from the primitive life, both as to the individual and the home itself. Not wanted—yes, not wanted. And, if by accident, the angel visitor appears—still, not wanted. Modern flats, in densely populated districts, hang out the sign: "Children not wanted." Sure! That's safe—and the landlord finds his renter in these wise days. We are really in the age when Napoleon's statement comes to us with added meaning: "What is needed in my beloved France—Mothers!"

Feminism Gains
In Poultry World

Last reported on the list of emancipated femininity is the hen. Only forty-three per cent of all chickens that emerge from the shell are hatched by their feathered mothers, says the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, the remaining fifty-seven per cent being incubator born. Even more scandalous to the women's-place-in-the-home adherents must be the news that twenty-three per cent of these hatchlings are commercial, so the chick not only must claim a mere machine for its parent but even the warm home surroundings are denied him at birth.

Farm hatching of chicks in incubators is most popular in the North Central States, while the old-fashioned setting hen holds her own in the South Atlantic States from Virginia to Florida and in the South Central States.

20 YEARS AGO

(From Bulloch Times, Aug. 25, 1909)

Mrs. G. F. Emmett and Mrs. J. H. Oglethorpe died.

Mrs. Dae Lester returned from a visit to her parents at Rogersville, Tenn.

Rev. Paul Ellis, pastor of the Methodist church, returned from a visit to North Georgia.

Miss Cornelia Mikell and N. L. Horne and Miss Carrie Marsh and J. B. Kitchings were married.

S. K. Hagins, of Emitt district, brought in the first bale of Sea Island cotton and sold it to R. Simmons at 23 cents.

Announcement was made of the opening of the "Statesboro Institute" on September 1st, with W. A. Mulloy as principal.

Three hundred and sixteen bales of cotton had been received on the local market to date. The prevailing price was 12 cents.

Frank Waters, a former resident of Statesboro was employed as instructor in a business college at Cincinnati, Ohio.

J. S. Hagin, commander, and Jacob Rucker, adjutant, called a meeting of the camp of Confederate veterans to elect delegates to the state reunion to be held in Athens on September 28th.

Bulloch county announced her claim to a family whose combined age totaled more than 600 years. They were members of the DeLoach family.

Mrs. Irving Rogers, 88; J. Hoyt DeLoach, 86; Bill H. DeLoach, 82; Mrs. William Williams, 75; Mrs. Allen McKell, 70; Mrs. J. W. Roach, 68; R. W. DeLoach, 66; Z. T. DeLoach, 64.

Roaches live in colonies. If you see one you know there are many. Roaches are loathsome vermin. Profit breeders. There are medical authorities who declare seventeen different diseases are transmitted by roaches. Roaches must be killed.

Spray FLY-TOX into cracks, crevices, around water pipes, faucets and other plumbing. Simple instructions on each bottle (blue label) for killing roaches and ALL household insects. INSIST on FLY-TOX. It is the scientific insecticide developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research Fellowship. FLY-TOX is safe, stainless, and has a perfume-like fragrance. Easy to use.—Adv.

NEW ROAD MILEAGE

Statesboro is well pleased with the new road law enacted by the legislature last week, known as the Taylor-Neill law.

The bill adds some two thousand miles to the present highway system of the state, which is to be taken on as soon as the counties traversed by the new mileage meet certain requirements. This additional mileage includes the 800 miles sought to be added by the highway commission last year, which was ruled out by the courts as illegal.

A study of the new mileage map discloses that Statesboro will be raised as well as any of the most favored cities of Georgia in the new scheme. The road in the direction of Statesboro, Ga., under the Act of Congress March 3, 1879.

Did you ever hear Al Johnson's "Sonny Boy"? Did you see Al Johnson, when others he trusted had forsaken him, take the lead in his arms, throw him to his bosom, and pour into his ears the words of endearment which came from a father's heart? Did you hear him tell the boy "You have made a heaven for me on earth"? Did you hear Al Johnson, when the lad was stricken and had closed his eyes in that long sleep, pour out his heart in anguish?

Did you feel that Al Johnson represented you, and that the things he said about his boy, meant your own boy even more?

Have you ever walked along the streets past the home of a stranger and heard the distressed cry of a little fellow as he ran away from the assaults of a strong man with a lash in his hands? Has your heart been torn by the piteous cry of that little one as he held his baby hands behind him in helpless efforts to shield his little body from the blows that were raining upon him? Did you wonder what one so small could have done to deserve such punishment? Did you wonder how a parent could bring himself to deal thus with a lad so small—too little to know if he had done a wrong, and yet too little to harbor resentment at the wrong that was being done to him? Had the little fellow strayed into forbidden territory, had he been caught in the act, had his curiosity—his desire to know the world about him—impelled him to go outside the door from which he had been forbidden to walk? Was it for this sin that his little body should be marked with stripes?

Did you see this and not know or at least have heard that some day the man who thus dealt with his offspring would feel remorse that he had so far forgotten his duty to protect in tenderness rather than in harshness the little one who had come to make for him "A heaven on earth"? Ah! the cruelty that comes through thoughtlessness! The needless sorrow we bring to those we love!

Speeders should remember that while there may not be another car within a mile it's only six feet to the ditch.

To be strictly ethical we judge that one should smoke at least 51 per cent of the brand of cigarettes which he endorses.

The new Indian commissioner is a Quaker. If he has William Penn's knack of dealing with the Redskins, he'll make good.
